FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

CHARLESTON, IL--Dale M. Wolf has been named Director of Admissions at Eastern Illinois University, effective June 1. He is Assistant Director of Admissions at Illinois Wesleyan University, Bloomington.

He succeeds John Beacon, who resigned to accept a similar position at Oklahoma State University. Pam Hadwiger has been acting director since Beacon's resignation.

Wolf has been at Illinois Wesleyan since 1973 as admissions counselor and assistant director. Prior to that he was an admissions counselor in the Chicago area for Illinois College, Jacksonville.

Dr. Glenn Williams, Vice President for Student Affairs, said "I believe Mr. Wolf's professional background, his enthusiasm, and his energy combine to make him an admirable choice for the position at Eastern. We are pleased that he accepted the position."

Wolf graduated from Lane Technical High School in Chicago. He holds the bachelor's degree in speech from Illinois College and a master's degree in counseling from Illinois State University. Post graduate work includes a management workshop in Boulder, Colo.

Wolf is a member of the Illinois Association of College Admissions Counselors. As a community volunteer, he has worked in United Way campaigns and with special olympics programs.

Wolf, 37, and Mrs. Wolf are the parents of two sons and a daughter.
